

Medical Stabilization through Connectedness

OUTLINE OF SERVICES

STABILIZE AND ADVISE: The first few days of recovery are very fragile. Removal of chemicals and toxins from the body often leave patients feeling vulnerable and confused. Personal attempts to remove chemicals and toxins are often dangerous and unpredictable.

Stabilization is a medical process that needs to be carefully managed. Most addicts are forced to navigate themselves through this transition alone. Many addicts have had negative past experiences involving pain and loss that were not addressed in the recovery process. The pain and damage the body endures only exacerbates the cost associated with the disease of addiction.

Advise: During Meaningful Medical Stabilization, the client will be connected to the medical team. This means that members of our medical team will be only a phone call away throughout this process. It includes 24-hour/7days a week access to the medical team that is familiar with the patient.

FEATURES OF OUR SERVICE THAT EXCEED SERVICES ELSEWHERE:

The stabilization process may involve intervention by the medical team at the individual client's residence. Our team strongly believes that this careful, caring attention, during the most fragile part of recovery, provides the key to unlocking long-term recovery.

Insurance does not reimburse for 24-hour access services, therefore most treatment plans fail to provide this vital service, which is often the bridge patients need to ensure a safe recovery.

In many recovery programs, medical intervention during the stabilization process requires patients to be admitted to emergency room care or to an IN-patient detoxification center.

The cost of admittance to emergency room care quickly soars to over $5000. This costly service is done by professionals with little personal relationship with the patient and little understanding of where the patient is in his or her stabilization process.

Ordinary IN-patient treatment centers offer full-package services consisting of boarding within their facilities and minimal medical intervention for a standard 30 to 90 days.

These methods are much more expensive and much less effective than the 24/7 service that we provide.

Our meaningful recovery stabilization provides the access and commitment needed to successfully stabilize our clients and to lead them into the next phase of our recovery program.

Meaningful recovery stabilization carefully takes our patients through the whole process of recovery and assures that this will be the last time that they endure the dangerous and often painful process of removing harmful chemical substances from their bodies.
